TRANSFORMING THE WORLD THROUGH EDUCATION

Be the change our Earth needs

In this issue: Stewardship Report

Sister Debra Marie Sciano, SSND

“Because the earth and its resources are God’s gift to all humanity, we are reverent, just, and sparing in our use of created things, concerned for the needs of present and future generations.”

~You Are Sent, GD 19a, Constitution of the School Sisters of Notre Dame

Dear Friends and Supporters,

Happy New Year! 2020 brought many unexpected things, including COVID-19, civil unrest and a renewed awareness of the inequities so many experience every day. Please join us in prayer for health, peace and justice in 2021.

The theme of this issue is Care of Creation, which is also the theme of our 2021 Women’s Leadership Luncheons. Care of Creation is not a new idea, but its urgency continues to grow. We are deeply connected with God’s gifts of people, air, soil, water, plants, birds and animals. We act with respect and reverence by how we live, our food choices and our land use. Read more about our work in the Cover Story and Sister Spotlight (pgs. 3, 4 & 5).

In June, we celebrate the 10th Anniversary of the formation of the Central Pacific Province, which brought four provinces together as one. Together, we move forward and prepare for our vibrant future. This includes letting go of some things, including buildings, which also brings new opportunities to build community. While we move forward, we also recognize the sisters who have gone before us in the 2020 Deceased Sisters list (p. 11).

While reading the Donor Spotlights (pgs. 7-8) and Stewardship Report (p. 6), you will see the tremendous impact of your ongoing support. Your faithfulness to us and our mission is inspirational. The love and support you continue to share, even in the hardest of times, helps us to share the good news and serve others. We appreciate you and pray for you every day. ●

ON THE COVER:

(L to R) Laura Peterson, director of Living Earth Center (LEC) from Central Pacific Province, Sister Beatriz Martinez, School Sisters of Notre Dame (SSND) United Nations - Non-Governmental Organization (U.N. - NGO) Representative from Central Pacific Province, Sister Mary Heather Mackinnon, from Atlantic-Midwest Province, Sister Pamela Jablon, from Atlantic-Midwest Province, and Elizabeth Mueller, co-director of Global Partners: Running Waters (GPRW) from Central Pacific Province, attended the 68th United Nations Civil Society Conference in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Developing future sustainability leaders

By Kaitlyn Holdmeyer and Heidi Sampson, Communications

“For us, education means enabling persons to reach the fullness of their potential as individuals created in God’s image and assisting them to direct their gifts toward building the earth.”

~ You Are Sent, C 22

The idea of passing the torch to lay people is a part of the School Sisters of Notre Dame (SSND) educational process. “Through education, people are transformed, educated, and in turn, change the world. Education has a ripple effect. Therefore, the idea of passing on the torch is one of those ripple effects,” said Sister Beatriz Martinez, SSND United Nations – Non-Governmental Organization (U.N.-NGO) Representative. SSND ministries such as, Global Partners: Runnings Waters (GPRW), Milwaukee, and the Living Earth Center (LEC), Mankato, Minnesota, are two ministries where the next generation of vivacious and dynamic leaders have moved to take the torch.

Meet Elizabeth Mueller

Elizabeth Mueller is a 25-year-old from Milwaukee, who studied at Marquette University where she double-majored in political science and international affairs. She first became involved with Global Partners: Runnings Waters (GPRW) back in 2014, when her mother, who is a history teacher at Dominican High School in Whitefish Bay, Wisconsin, partnered with Sister Jan Gregorcich, co-founder of GPRW, to coordinate a trip to Guatemala. Elizabeth was fortunate to be able to go on the trip, where she met, listened to and learned from the community leaders in Guatemala. GPRW works in partnership with communities in Latin America to initiate and complete water, food, education and health projects. They listen to local community members and focus on being a source of positivity and empowerment by offering financial, cultural and spiritual resources. At this time, GPRW has completed more than 148 clean water projects, impacting the lives of over 310,000 people in rural and urban communities in Latin America.

Elizabeth is passionate about engaging, connecting and learning. “Not only is care of creation very important to me, I think it is also very much ‘front of mind,’ for a lot of young adults. We value our planet and want to take better care of it. Whether it’s taking more aggressive action to fight climate change, or campaigning for quality and accessible healthcare for all, we are leading movements, raising awareness and influencing policies,” said Elizabeth. Currently, Elizabeth and Dr. Jason Meyler are co-directors at GPRW.

Meet Laura Peterson

In her fourth year as director of the Living Earth Center (LEC), Laura Peterson earned a master’s degree in experiential education at Minnesota State University, Mankato. As an undergraduate, she studied international relations at Franklin University, Switzerland. The Denver native also worked with farmers in Sub-Saharan Africa for about a year after graduating from Franklin University and before moving to rural Minnesota. Laura brings a passion for education and cross-cultural engagement, as she strives to bring people together to share common ground through the two acres of community gardens. LEC also holds educational workshops, community conversations and conferences, as the focus is on environmental and social sustainable solutions. According to Laura, “It’s this concept of coming together; even though they are growing food and sharing food that can be eaten, what they are also doing is creating a connection. This idea of connection is fundamental because it bridges that concept of difference and makes us one.”

The U.N. Conference and Sister Beatriz Martinez

To further Elizabeth and Laura’s development as sustainable leaders on a global level, SSND invited them to participate in the 68th United Nations Civil Society Conference in Salt Lake City, Utah. The theme of the conference was “Building Inclusive and Sustainable Communities.” The conference included senior U.N. officials, prominent international NGOs, academicians and international media, to discuss topics related to the implementation of Sustainable Development Goal-11 (SDG-11), which makes cities and human settlements inclusive, safe, resilient and sustainable.

Extensively involved in the efforts to increase sustainability, Sister Beatriz Martinez is the SSND United Nations - Non-Governmental Organization (U.N.-NGO) Representative.

Sister Beatriz’s role as a representative is to bring the gospel perspective - as expressed in You Are Sent - to the U.N. Part of her position is to invite and connect other SSND, associates and colleagues, to participate in the U.N.’s events, such as the Civil Society Conference by the Department of Global Communications, the meetings and forums of the Economic and Social Council, the Commission for Social Development, the Commission on the Status of Women, the High-Level Political Forum (HLPF), and the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues. “During these events, we, along with other NGOs, can submit written or oral statements to advocate for specific local or global pressing issues,” said Sister Beatriz.

SSND firmly believe care of creation is vital for all living beings on the planet. According to Sister Beatriz, we are obligated to use the Earth’s gifts responsibly and to recognize the interconnection of all living beings and nature. We need each other. We depend on each other. Pope Francis calls us to, “cooperate as instruments of God for the care of creation, each according to his or her own culture, experience, involvements, and talents” (Laudato si’ [LS] 14). Part of recognizing our interconnection is understanding the need for inclusive and sustainable communities. Inclusive communities welcome, accept and honor the dignity of all peoples and nature, by trusting each other’s abilities, knowledge and expertise, to meet present needs without compromising the future generations’ ability to meet their own needs.

What was learned by

“This conference offered an important opportunity for dialogue between government agencies, NGOs and civil society leaders. What was especially encouraging about the conference was that 40% of the participants were youth from ages 18-32.”

Organized clutter is still clutter!

By Kaitlyn Holdmeyer, Communications

Sister Lynore Girmscheid is a musician by trade. She has spent many years playing and teaching instruments, as well as working in parishes as a liturgist. While at home, Sister Lynore has lived with organized clutter for a number of years. After listening to discussions surrounding how to declutter and reflecting on her possessions, she eventually began to accept that, “even though my things were organized, I was still living with many things I no longer used. I had to ask myself, how do I live the vow of poverty? We are all called to look at things differently at different stages of our life. For me, this is how I chose to participate in Care of Creation. There are a variety of ways to play an important role in the Care of Creation. For me, I looked at consumerism, by looking at what I have and choosing to live more simply.”

How does one declutter? Sister Lynore said, “I began to intentionally declutter. Obviously, the greater the emotional attachment the longer it took me to downsize. A minimalistic lifestyle is an ongoing and unending challenge, but with it also comes deeper joy in being and giving, rather than in having.” ● those attending the conference? According to Laura, “All aspects of civic interaction can be tied to concepts of sustainability. I attended conference workshops that focused on everything from soil health, to how to partner elderly populations who live alone with those interested in having gardens, but simply don’t have the space. Plus, one of the biggest ways our environment can be saved, is by starting right now. We can’t wait for the perfect time to start thinking about sustainable solutions. We need to call on our communities to include sustainability into their civic and social planning now, as opposed to reacting to the costly impacts of climate change.”

Elizabeth left the conference feeling hopeful and encouraged. “This conference offered an important opportunity for dialogue between government agencies, NGOs and civil society leaders. What was especially encouraging about the conference was that 40% of the participants were youth from ages 18-32. When given the opportunity, youth want to be engaged, helpful members of our society, as they understand the value of multilateral partnerships. It was so cool to meet and learn from young leaders all over the world, who were just as excited as we were, to communicate and exchange ideas. I came back from my experience energized and ready to continue GPRW’s legacy of building and maintaining intercultural relationships through collaborative partnerships.” ●

From the director of resource development

By Mary Kay Murray, Resource Development

Last year was a tumultuous year with a pandemic, racial injustice, inequality and environmental policy concerns. However, one thing that has not changed is the work the sisters continue to do to unify, as they strive to create a world where we all are treated equally and have the opportunity to transform the world.

We have all been impacted by COVID-19. The emotional toll and isolation have been hard on all of us. However, your care, concern and respect for the sisters, and your willingness to support them through this past year, has been overwhelming. We received an extraordinary response to the matching gift appeal in May. We are humbled and grateful.

Although we were unable to hold in-person events, it was even more difficult not to be able to see and talk with our many friends and supporters. Despite the challenges, we want you to know we hold you in our hearts.

Hopefully, the knowledge that the sisters are praying for you and those hurting in our world, gives you a sense of peace and renewed optimism, bringing you closer to God.

The financial picture outlining how your gifts were used this past year is provided below. If you have any questions, please contact Mary Kay Murray at 262-787-1037 or mmurray@ssndcp.org. ●

HOW THE GIFTS WERE USED

Ensuring SSND educational efforts continue

By Sister Marcie Solms and Theresa Liu, Resource Development

James Maren

James Maren of Brookfield, Wisconsin, was taught by the School Sisters of Notre Dame (SSND) at St. John de Nepomuc grade school in Milwaukee. Graduating in 1953, he has good memories from those years and shared, "I have always loved those sisters!" Another connection with SSND was during his high school years at St. John Cathedral where Sister Caroline Jakubowski was his classmate.

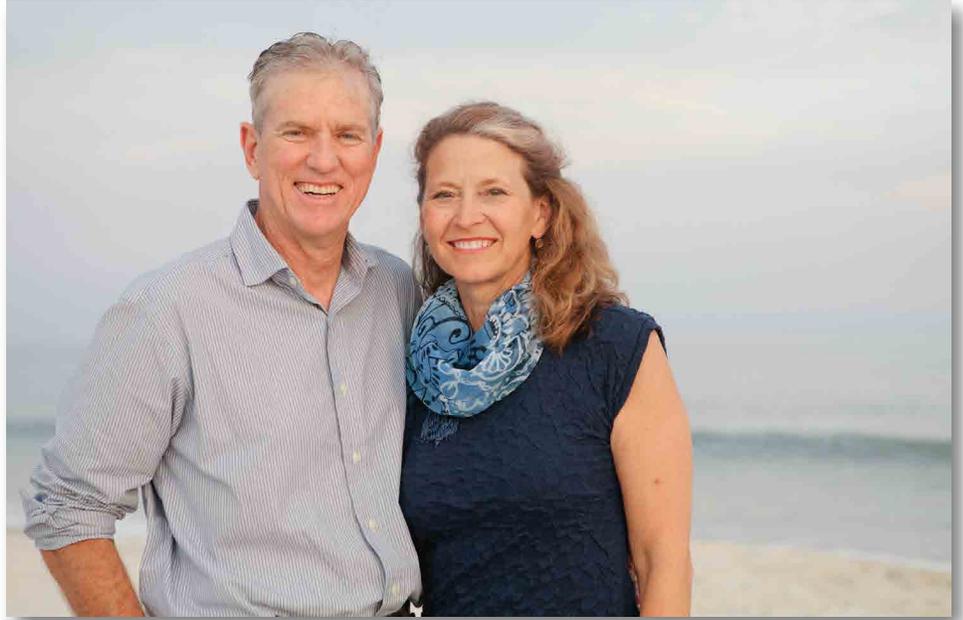

Later in life, Jim owned a floral shop. On March 25, 1963, the sisters changed their habits from the starched wimples and wide veils to a softer, more modified version. In response, Jim delivered a red rose corsage for each sister at St. John de Nepomuc. The sisters were quite surprised.

Jim continued to stay connected with one of his grade school teachers, Sister James Marie O'Connor. One St. Patrick's Day, he even wired flowers to her in Rome. His sense of humor was evident on his florist business card which read, "We take care of you from womb to tomb."

His support of SSND is influenced by his earliest memories. "When I think back to the years I was in school, I remember what I learned that from the sisters. As a result, I have tried to send a donation from my floral shop earnings to this day," he said.

Dr. Phil and Janet Mannhard

Dr. Phil Mannhard came to know the School Sisters of Notre Dame (SSND) by caring for them at Lemay Family Dentistry, a dental practice in St. Louis that he owned. "In learning about the sisters and their charitable work, I was impressed by their compassion and understanding of the social condition," said Phil. "The sisters help people from all walks of life."

Phil and his wife Janet received faith-filled education by attending Catholic elementary and high schools. Phil completed his undergraduate education at the University of Michigan and his postgraduate work at the University of Missouri-Kansas City Dental School. Janet earned her undergraduate degree from the University of Nebraska and completed her postgraduate education at the University of Missouri's School of Physical Therapy. Janet teaches at Washington University in St. Louis.

Along with knowing the sisters on a personal level as patients, Phil has worked with the sisters in his role as president of the board of directors for The Housing Partnership, an organization in St. Louis providing homes and residential services to low-income families. Sister Leonette Juengst is a current board member.

Phil and Janet are involved in other charitable organizations, such as the Optimist Club of St. Louis, a service organization that helps local youth. They also participate in social justice efforts through their parish, St. Gabriel the Archangel in St. Louis. However, the sisters' dedication to social causes and the broad scope of their mission resonates with Phil and Janet. "We've seen firsthand the sisters' dedication to social issues," said Phil. "We see the value of what they contribute to the community and we give, so that they can continue their mission."

Lee and Jerilyn Arndt

Lee, a Vietnam War veteran, and Jerilyn Arndt, a retired nurse, have known the School Sisters of Notre Dame since the 1950s. They currently live in Cushing, Minnesota, and have lived in various areas of Minnesota and Wisconsin throughout the years. When the couple lived in Forest Lake, Minnesota, they attended St. Peter's Church. As a result, they formed a close relationship with SSND, who would often babysit their children or borrow their car. Jerilyn joked, "Whenever we needed them to babysit, we'd call them up and ask if they'd like to reaffirm their vocation."

Lee served on the Development Board for Our Lady of Good

Counsel, Mankato, Minnesota, for four to five years. He helped with the renovation of the healthcare wing on campus. They have many good memories with the sisters, including attending a craft fair and staying with the sisters for a "very fun" weekend. Sister Marion Welter once helped them find a home and Sister Esther Wagner attended one of Jerilyn's births. They are very thankful for the presence of sisters in their lives and have developed many wonderful relationships over the years with the sisters. The couple shared that when Jerilyn was diagnosed with cancer in the 1980s, the sisters were there to pray for her healing. Today, they feel the sisters' prayers for them every day.

Awards and Honors

Sister Joyelle Proot's artwork "Glory Revealed" was accepted for juried exhibition in Art St. Louis' "Heaven and Earth" show. Sixty-one artworks by fifty-nine artists from Missouri, Illinois and Kentucky were selected for the exhibition.

Sister Pamela Moehring, Chaplain at SSM Health St. Mary's Hospital, Madison, Wisconsin, received the title, 'Health Care Hero.'

Sister Jan Berberich gave the commencement address at the Notre Dame High School (NDHS) graduation in St. Louis. The event celebrated the 85th graduating class of NDHS.

Sister Joseph Marie Flynn received an honorary Doctor of Religious Studies from Marquette University, Milwaukee, for recognition of her work associated with the book, "Rescuing Regina: The Battle to Save a Friend from Deportation and Death."

Sister Maria Gomez was honored in Cristo Rey Dallas' newsletter for visiting COVID-19 patients at Methodist Hospital in Dallas.

Sister Addie Lorraine Walker, Ph.D., received the 'Beautiful Are Their Feet Award' during the 2020 Samuel DeWitt Proctor Conference. The award recognizes women who have stood in defiance of the evil of racism and sexism, unafraid. In particular, the award is given to those who have made a difference in the lives of the African American Community.

Sisters Francette Malecha and Margaret Roozen were honored prior to their retirement by the Minnesota Isanti County Board of Commissioners with plaques that read, "For your unwavering service to our most vulnerable children of Isanti County. You provided them with unconditional love and safety. With much appreciation and gratitude."

Central Pacific Province celebrates 10 years

By Sister Helen Jane Jaeb, Provincial Council

Ten years ago, on June 12, 2011, four School Sisters of Notre Dame (SSND) provinces - Dallas, Milwaukee, Mankato, Minnesota and St. Louis (including Guam and Japan) - formed one province named the Central Pacific Province. On June 12, 2021, the Central Pacific Province will celebrate 10 years as one province proclaiming the good news as SSND, directing our entire lives toward that oneness for which Jesus Christ was sent.

Many years earlier, sisters in leadership from the founding provinces began having conversations about bringing the four provinces together, to live the mission.

As conversations continued, more sisters, associates and staff were invited to join the dream of four becoming one. Similarities and differences led to new-found relationships, ways to build on gifts and wisdom.

Now, 10 years later, the Central Pacific Province continues this dream by living the SSND mission into the future, for the good of the whole: A province of hope, transforming our world through education.

The sisters invite you, our partners in mission, to celebrate with them through prayer and thanksgiving. Thank you for your continued support. As you pray for us, know that more than 800 sisters also have you in their prayers and thoughts ●

"Precious and blessed is the death of the faithful before God. . . for they die in union with their dear Jesus, in the grace of God, in peace."
